

The Diamond Life™

One year has 365 days – according to the Gregorian calendar. Every 4 years, we do get a bonus day because 365 days is shorter than a solar year by almost 6 hours

Regardless of the year, too many days are spent laboring making a living instead of living a life.

The Diamond Life™ provides a framework to balance Personal time and Discovery time. Both of these are supported by two triangles of paid labor – either for-profit or non-profit.

Personal time is for you, with your family and friends. It is the weekend to rest and build your community. It is your statutory holidays. It is the time you need when sick or stressed. It is personal.

Discovery is anything you want it to be: vacation, travel, education, sport, hobby – the goal is to become a better you – to arrange your time so that you are clearer and more fully realized as the human being that you are meant to be.

The Diamond formed by your Personal and Discovery time is supported by your work. In my case, the for-profit portion of my life is Knowledge Mobilization Works – a successful consulting company, while the non-profit portion is the Knowledge Mobilization Institute – an organization that provides training and learning events to help develop the capacity for individuals and organizations to create more value from knowledge.
